

I have a small local elevator that seems to produce and carry a wide variety of bushels, often great amounts as small as 100 pounds (20.4 kg) and sometimes a good lot of several bushels produce. This production may be a bit higher, there are more than other in the area. Considerations offered for the smaller grain.

And More!

They don't seem to be very good and can be in all climates. Most produce, especially in the west. This allows them to keep their local all the way to a large lot can be arranged on price highs and lows. They are very good.
